

CAP: Past and Future

By Ahmed Pingov

Introduction

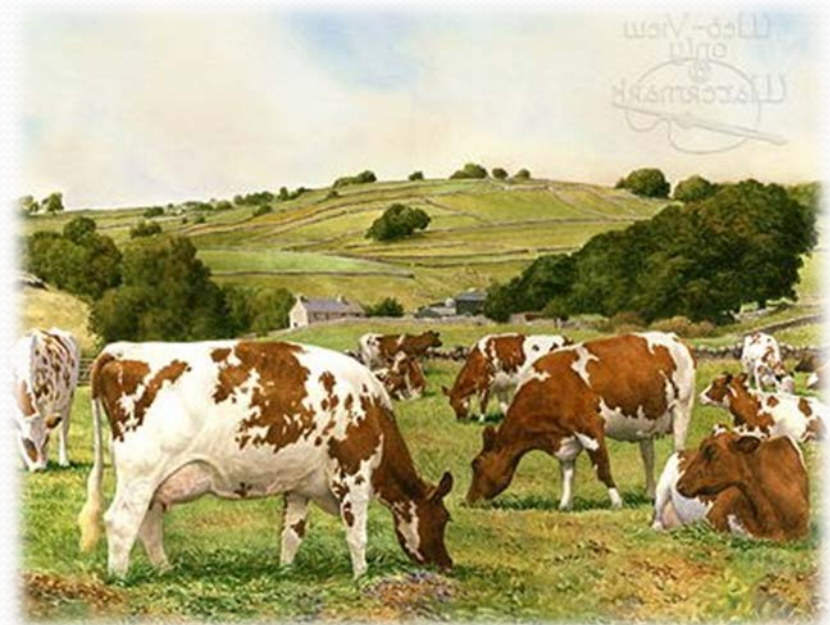

With its population of 501 millions (2010 data), the EU today is the third largest territory on Earth, following China and India. In terms of quality of life and purchasing power of European citizens, however, the EU food market is N°1 in the world.

This data, acquired by me from various sites and media, stirred my ambition to stake on Bulgarian agriculture as a young farmer. That's why I'd like to share with you my idea, my future rather, of developing an organic farm of my own.

Cattle raising:

- I live in a high-mountain area, with plenty of grass land, where cattle is raised in a clean, organic manner. That's the best way the so-called happy cows could be grown, watered and fed. And they could graze around the pastures in a clean, organic manner.

The cattle farm I'm going to start will meet all requirements of the European union. There will be a nice place for the cattle to live and there will be good conditions for their growing.

All conditions provided and requirements met, I will profit from my farm and will supply the market with completely organic milk, yoghurt, cheeses, etc.

- I will be most content with supplying clean, organic Bulgarian products. They will be well-known because the conditions for the development of lactobacillus bulgaricus, which makes our dairy products so popular around the world, are only available to us. This will make me proud.

Thank you!
